Extra: So Much Movement

Mars is retrograde in Gemini all of December, continuing with frustrations, misunderstandings, and short tempers.

Mercury also turns retrograde on December 29th in Capricorn, adding to those problems. In Capricorn, we may feel like our goals get stalled for the new year, and instead, we may want to focus on second chances with old goals. The retrograde energy is good for second chances, not as great for anything brand new.

Then Jupiter moves to Aries on December 20th, and once we're out of the retrogrades in January, this can give us a boost of energy to pursue opportunities and explore what's possible. Jupiter is straight through Aries until it leaves in May 2023. Jupiter spends most of December at sensitive degrees, so there can be activity, but we need to have some patience.

Then Ceres moves from Virgo to Libra, and Ceres will retrograde starting in February and that occurs in Virgo and Libra. Pay attention to matters regarding money, resources, security, and support in December as this may be a clue of what that retrograde brings.

On the upside, we come out of the fog in December!

What can you give a second chance with? Which opportunities can you do your homework with and make plans for? What is your current focus with money and resources? How are you getting and giving support? What is being revealed to you that had been obscured? Brainstorm:
